REMARKS

This is in Reply to the Supplemental Examiner's Answer dated March 25, 2005. It is respectfully submitted that various contentions asserted in the Supplemental Examiner's Answer as well as previous arguments made by the Examiner in connection with rejection of claims of the subject application are without merit. The below-noted comments re-address and further emphasize deficiencies of the Examiner's bases for relying on the cited art in connection with rejecting claims of the subject patent application.

The Supplemental Examiner's Answer notes that "In the Examiner's Answer ... 'The amendment after final rejection filed on 12/23/2003' should be 'Reply to Final Office Action Dated September 24, 2003 filed on 12/23/2003' and 'The amendment after final rejection filed on 3/17/2004' should be 'Reply to Advisory Action Dated January 13, 2005 filed on 3/17/2005.'" (See pg. 2). Applicants' representative respectfully reiterates that no claims were amended in either the Reply to Final Office Action dated September 24, 2003, which was filed on December 23, 2003, or the Reply to Advisory Action dated January 13, 2005, which was filed on March 17, 2005. Thus, the above noted alterations in the Supplemental Examiner's Answer do not cure the incorrect statements related to the Status of Amendments After Final in the Examiner's Answer dated August 11, 2004.

Moreover, Amberg et al. does not teach or suggest a setup component that receives information indicative of a location scenario related to where the software system is being installed as recited in independent claim 1 (and similarly in independent claims 7, 8, and 15). The Supplemental Examiner's Answer intimates that "each ... 'order' is, at least, equivalent to each 'location scenario'" and "[b]ecause in Amberg et al., at least each order, build-to-order, must return back to a unique identifier (specific location scenario) according to a customer-specific information...; the build-to-order is also provided to the software installation and testing system. (See Supplemental Examiner's Answer, pg. 2) (emphasis removed and citations omitted). Applicants' representative respectfully avers to the contrary.

Amberg et al. discloses that a target computer system order can be converted into a record called a BAR file. (See col. 5, ll. 54-56). The BAR file can include customer-specific information such as a name, an address, and a phone number. (See col. 5, ll. 63-65). Although the BAR file can comprise an address, the address is not related to where the software system is being installed – instead, it is associated with a location of a customer. Amberg et al. is silent regarding a location scenario related to where the software system is being installed. Thus, Amberg et al. fails to teach or suggest such aspects recited in the subject claims.

CONCLUSION

The present application is believed to be in condition for allowance, in view of the above comments. A prompt action to such end is earnestly solicited.
